If you find this exercise difficult, a good strategy is to find sentences in the story that have the same or nearly the same words. When the sentences here and in the story have exactly the same words, compare them and look at the word order. Practice writing the words in the correct order three times.*

If the sentences have nearly the same words but some words are different, read the sentence in the story. Think about its meaning. Then think about how you can organize the words here to have the same meaning.
